Connecticut Privacy Act

As more states enact their own privacy laws, Connecticut has joined California, Virginia, Colorado, and Utah in signing legislation into effect protecting its residents' data privacy. Connecticut's law draws many similarities from the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA) and the Virginia Consumer Data Protection Act (CDPA), as well as the EU's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), laws that we have typically considered as the ones leading the way in data privacy.

Required Action

Businesses must update their privacy policies in order to be in compliance with this new act. The Connecticut Privacy Act is available online for your personal review.

The Law and Connecticut Businesses

Because the Connecticut Privacy Act requires businesses marketing to Connecticut residents to display privacy policies on their websites, Entrata encourages clients with properties in the state to review and update their own privacy policies in order to comply with the Connecticut. Within ProspectPortal, a custom privacy policy may be uploaded to meet this requirement.

Entrata's compliance team understands the importance of staying current with these new and evolving data privacy regulations and the importance of keeping our clients up to date as well. If you, as a business that markets to Connecticut residents, haven't customized the privacy policy on your ProspectPortal websites, the current default displays the Entrata privacy policy. Please note that the Entrata privacy policy does not reflect the collection of data by you as a business/controller in the state of Connecticut. You should consult with your own legal counsel to assure your privacy policy is drafted correctly to meet the newly enacted Connecticut Privacy Act requirements.

Additionally, the Connecticut Privacy Act grants consumers certain rights to opt out, request to delete, etc. which may result in data privacy requests being submitted. You can familiarize yourself with the Creating and Managing Data Privacy Requests article within Entrata's Help & Support system.

Here's how to view the user guides on how to create and/or manage data privacy requests and add privacy policies:

1. Visit your Entrata site.
2. Click on the square on the top right corner with a question mark inside.
3. Click on the General Help link in the drop-down menu; it will be the very first link.
4. Search for the keywords "data privacy" in the search bar at the top left of the page.
